

ANNUAL SERMON TO LEE'S VETERANS

Rev. R. A. Goodwin, Pastor of Old St. John's, Delivers Sermon of Much Power.

THEIR CAUSE WAS RIGHTEOUS

Men Who Fought for Confederacy May Look World in the Face.

"As the heavens are higher than the earth, so are my thoughts higher than your thoughts," was the text of a powerful sermon preached by the Rev. R. A. Goodwin before Lee Camp last night at the St. John's Episcopal Church.

In spite of the inclement weather, the attendance was unusually large, and members of the Hollywood Memorial Association, of the Oakwood Memorial Association, and of Lee and Pickett Camps of Confederate Veterans, were present in full force. The sermon was heard with the deepest attention, and the opinion expressed at the conclusion was unanimous that it was one of the best ever delivered before the veterans on this annual first Sabbath in May.

After a prayer by the Rev. J. William Jones, the pastor of the church, Rev. Mr. Goodwin, read the text from Isaiah 55:9, and spoke as follows:

"I have been asked at the call of the Oakwood Memorial Association to worship the God of our fathers, with our eyes turned to the past; the past from which the present has come; the past in which the everlasting God was as real as He is now, and in which His love and mercy did not fail for the fall of the Confederacy was only one of the many events which His Providence is bringing about for the glory of our beloved South."

Righteousness of Cause.

The speaker stated that it was too late to argue before an intelligent audience for the justice and righteousness of the South's cause, as it was known and read of by all men who are not blinded to the truth by prejudice, passion or ignorance. He said that the animosities of the times of '61-66 were fading, and that the cause of the South could be reviewed in a calmer and more dispassionate manner than was possible decades ago.

The sermon was most eloquently delivered, and electric sentences were not infrequently in the course of the discourse. Other facts were stated in a way to command attention, such as when he declared that "it seems to be written in the laws of the development of nations that before peoples can unite into one great people, that their blood should be mingled, not only in the veins of the victors, but in the veins of the vanquished."

But on the latter statement, which the speaker looked back thoughtfully over the great struggles, as we think calmly of its causes and effects, we can raise our heads and look with undimmed eye into the face of any man, and say: "I have fought for the right, and I am the same circumstance, and I can do it again."

Goodwin asserted that the South still has a great part to play in the nations history; that its highest duty will be to preserve the great principles for which the founders of the republic fought and died.

In concluding his address, the speaker spoke especially of the characters of the Confederacy: General Lee, General Jackson, and President Davis. He dwelt at length on the confirmation of President Davis, and the visit paid him by his pastor, Rev. Dr. Minnigerode, while he was in the prison at Fortress Monroe, and the story of the illustrations of the day, and spoke of having their figures and characters as a beacon light to personal betterment of character. He said he was glad the day had been termed Memorial Day, and hoped the day was far off, when it would be changed to Decoration Day.

In applying the term, speaking of the characters of the men, he concluded: "And now, veterans in the noble struggle, as your lines are growing thin, I ask you to remember Jackson, and Lee and Davis, as Christians, and to follow their faith that they may be heroes in the great army of the future."

The Lee Camp veterans turned out in full force under the command of Lieutenant-Commander B. Freeman. They especially were hearty in the appreciation of the eloquent sermon delivered by Rev. Mr. Goodwin.

SEMINARY FINALS.

Sermon Delivered Before Class of 1906 Last Night By Dr. Reed.

The commencement exercises of the Union Theological Seminary began last night at the First Presbyterian Church, with a sermon by Rev. Dr. R. C. Reed, of Columbia, S. C. The preacher's text was Matthew, 5:3, "Blessed ye, ye that weep now, for ye shall laugh hereafter." Dr. Reed spoke at some length upon the need of more workers and more money in the missionary field. He said that God asks His disciples to work among the multitude. If each Christian gave but one cent a day, it would supply all the missionaries necessary for the world's conversion. The preacher went on to speak of the necessity of earnestness and trust in one's prayer, and that when his prayer answered, he must keep his part of the compact with God. When part of the board of trustees, who were and get them, you must do your duty by supporting them.

Dr. Reed urged the congregation to give more to the missionary fund, in order that disciples might spread the teachings of Christ in all lands; for the Christian's field is the world.

The graduating exercises will be held in the Seminary Chapel Wednesday morning at 11 o'clock. The address to the graduates will be delivered by Rev. Dr. A. C. Hopkins. The diplomas will be presented by Mr. George W. Watts, president of the board of trustees. All are cordially invited to attend these exercises.

Held Memorial Services.

The speaker of the occasion has not yet been announced, but it is stated that he will be an orator of mark and ability, and Mr. Montague, himself a speaker of rare power, will also make an address.

The baccalaureate sermon will be preached in the college chapel on that evening by Rev. R. P. Johnson, pastor of Fifth Avenue Baptist Church, in New York City, a church known not only for its affluent and large congregations, but also from the fact that it is the sanctuary in which worship John D.
